POLITICAL WEATHER FORECAST.

Professor E. C. Gelsinger, a Michigan scientist, has gone into the business of predicting political weather, and we print his predictions for the benefit of the curious.

He says all human actions are the result of certain vibrating waves, which act on all things, animate or inanimate, with precision and regularity. He claims to have discovered the vibrating wave, which is the impelling power, the spring of action to the American Nation. This vibrating wave is invariably in its manifestations, as certain as the rising sun. The forecasting of its manifestations is not a matter of theory, but a problem of mathematics. The outward and appreciable manifestation of the vibrating waves is color. By means of sound and color waves the Professor has read the Presidential campaign of 1896, and gives it as follows:

The Republican candidates will be McKinley and Reed. McKinley will head the ticket, as he will refuse to accept second place, which will be given to Reed. Alger will make a strong fight for the Vice presidency, but the East must be mollified and he will not win. The successful man for the Presidency will be a person of strong Populistic leanings from the Democratic ranks, and the successful candidate for Vice President will be a seceder from the Republican ranks and a man of decided Populistic leanings. Neither of the successful candidates will receive the aid of Wall street nor the corporations, nor will they need it, but McKinley and Reed will receive such aid. The classes will support McKinley and Reed, but the great masses of the people—the common people now suffering so much—will rise in their might and elect the successful candidates. When the successful candidate succeeds Cleveland, laws will be enacted in the interest of the masses and prosperity and plenty will again prevail throughout the Union.

Professor Gelsinger seems to read the signs aright. He at least points out the way of the masses. If they follow it the money powers will not prevail, laws will be enacted in the interest of the masses, not the classes, and the United States relieved from the galling yoke, will once more be the land of the free and the home of Peace and Plenty.

A New Official Needed.

It might be a good idea to add to the list of State offices an "Official Bug Hunter" for bills. New members draw up bills that don't express the meaning of the author because of his imperfect knowledge of the English language, and the law.

For instance a mining bill vetoed by the Governor, defined a quartz claim as being 1,500 feet long by 600 feet wide, and it went on to say that in locating a placer claim its dimensions should be the same as a quartz claim, except that when "feet" was designated it should be read "acres." By applying this rule a placer claim must be 1,500 acres long by 600 wide, or just 900,000 acres. This would make rather a large placer claim and take in several counties. This was doubtless an accident on the part of the man who drew up the bill, but both houses passed it without discovering the mistake, but the Governor dropped on it and vetoed it. If the Legislature should elect a man who was a good lawyer and a good student of the English language, whose sole duty was to hunt for bugs in bills, it would expedite business.

Lack of Enterprise.

Mr. Longton, representing a Sacramento firm has been for several days past in Nevada buying potatoes to ship East. He has purchased over fifty carloads at from $10 to $13 per ton and is quietly sliding them into the Chicago market. Of course he makes a profit in the transaction and a good one.

Now why could not the Nevada potato growers band together and ship their products East in car load lots. One reason is that they lack enterprise and another is that if some well known dealer started in to purchase potatoes in large quantities, his neighbors fearing that he would in some way be benefitted would decline to come into the scheme at all, but let a Californian come up here and he has no trouble in doing business and making the profit to take out of the State.

Uncalled For Hilarity.

The correspondent of the Reno Gazette writes: Hallelujah! The Purity of Elections bill has passed the Senate by the Heaven inspired majority of eleven to three. I am too happy for utterance or writerance. Farewell, a long farewell to the potency of the sack, and all hail the blessed era of decent politics in the battleborn commonwealth of Nevada. Bless the Seventeenth session, with all its shortcomings. "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

If the Gazette correspondent had read the bill carefully he would not be so hilarious. Many of its provisions are so ridiculous that it defeats its own ends, and there is hardly a paragraph in it that cannot be easily evaded. Its aims were good, but its execution, in the opinion of practical politicians, amounts to nothing in particular.

A Dead Girl Libeled.

The statement made by a Mrs. Gregory that Miss Lampman of this city had a child by James Fair Junior, is regarded by the people of this city as a cruel libel on the dead girl's memory. In speaking of the case the Daily Report says:

George W. Lampman, brother of Mary Lampman, the girl who it has been said had a child by James G. Fair Jr., is angry at Mrs. Gregory for telling the story. He denies that his sister was intimate with young Fair. He says Mrs. Gregory's story is a cruel lie and that if she were a man he would do her bodily injury. He asserts that his sister would rather sit on his knees in front of the fire of an evening than go to any party or ball. She kept company with no one.

Ignatius Donnelly refuses to join the new Silver party, which may be regarded as its first streak of good luck.—Enterprise.

The above is a fair sample of the flippant way that the press has of writing of men of whose standing they are ignorant, and whose characters they are unable to comprehend. Ignatius Donnelly is one of the most remarkable men in the United States, and an intellectual giant. No man with ordinary good sense would make a flippant allusion to him.

The U. S. Marshall and the U. S. District Attorney are together of late in reference to the Mint scandal. Arrest, indictment and trial will probably follow on the heels of the Inspector's report.
